MOSCAVIDE HOUSE

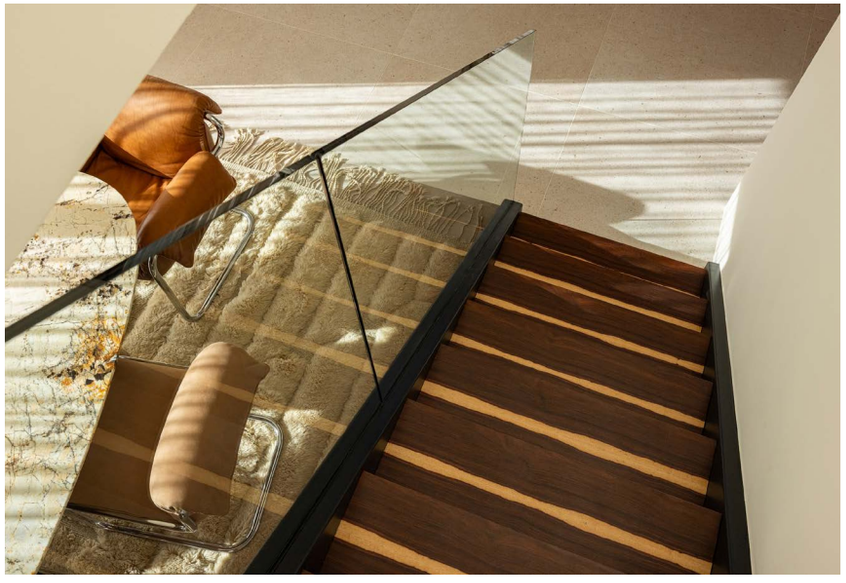

Detail & Precision

Moscavide House is a contemporary apartment in Lisbon, conceived around an exploration of visual continuity, transparency and material restraint.

The interior architecture project embraces a refined and sensory language, where natural light, reflections and materiality shape the experience of the space.

This project is a contemporary interpretation of living: quiet, refined and deeply sensory. Rather than simply designing spaces, the intervention seeks to create atmospheres, places where natural light, noble materials and transparency engage in a continuous dialogue.
